Tasting Notes:

Reviews and Ratings:

Wine Spectator: Rating 92 "Lithe, polished and distinctive for its delicate chai spice and orange peel nuances against a tightly focused core of blackberry and currant fruit, persisting into the long, vivid finish."

Robert Parker's Wine Advocate: Rating 93 "The 2008 Pinot Noir Block 22 Last Hurrah (so-named because after the harvest it was pulled out due to phylloxera) is 100% Pommard clone. It gives up a spicy perfume with notes of cedar, spice box, underbrush, and an amalgam of red fruits. Already complex and a bit more layered than the Estate cuvee, it is packed with sweet fruit containing enough structure to evolve for another 3-4 years. This lengthy effort will offer pleasure from 2013 to 2023 while going out in style."
